Stitch-at-Home Challenge
Submissions due August 15, 2019, Exhibition September, 2019

What is the Stitch-at-Home Challenge?

We have created the Stitch-at-Home Challenge as a way to encourage and inspire people to stitch. This is not a competition but a challenge. For each challenge we will provide you with an inspiration, and you may use any needlework technique or combination of techniques in order to make a piece of textile art. Anyone at any level of stitching expertise may participate.

Who can enter?

Anyone! We know that many of you live far away. If you can’t come and visit us here in San Francisco, this is a great opportunity for you to join our stitching community. If you live close by, we encourage you to join us for our free weekly Stitch-Ins to work on your piece and also to come in and see your work on display during our Challenge Exhibition!

What do I do with my finished piece?

Your finished piece of art belongs to you, but for each challenge there will be a deadline for you to submit either a photograph of your piece or the actual piece itself for display in an exhibition. The Challenge Exhibition will be up for a month at SNAD and it is a great opportunity to showcase your work. With your permission, we will also display your work in an online gallery on our website.
THIS CHALLENGE’S INSPIRATION:
Talismans

For our tenth Stitch-at-Home Challenge, please consider the world of Talismans. What items in your experience possess power, bring you luck, or hold innate value? Symbols carved into surfaces of a wall, glittering amulets worn against the skin, or regal sculptures of watchful animals.

Amulets, charms, and fetishes from around the world differ in form, mythology, and origin. Some display intricate writing or imagery and some exist as simple, raw material. Some are used in formal ceremony or passed down within a lineage and others are plucked from the earth and valued for only a short time. Yet, they all share the quality of attributed value by the desire to understand and interpret our experience through shared material language.

Talismans flood every material culture on earth. Show us yours.

Tips for photographing your work

Prepare your piece for photographing. If your work has folds or wrinkles, you may want to carefully iron or steam the piece. Have a close look for stray threads. You can cut these off or gently remove them with tape.

Photograph before you frame. If you plan on framing your piece, photograph your piece before you frame it. It is hard to take a good photograph through glass after the piece has been framed.

Use natural light. Try taking your piece outside on a cloudy day to photograph it. This will minimize shadows in the photo and help you to get the truest colors.

Think about the background. Set your piece on a large blank piece of paper or hang a sheet behind it to create a clean backdrop. You don’t want the viewer to be distracted by the surroundings. Your work is the main event!
Take a photo of the whole piece plus some detail shots. Try to take one overall photo of the piece so the viewer can get a sense of the whole picture. Make sure to leave a border around the piece to ensure the edges of your piece aren’t cut off in the photograph. It can always be cropped a little smaller later. Then take some detail shots, everyone likes to see stitching up close! If your piece is 3-d, take photos of the different sides of the piece as well as some detail shots.

Make sure to take a high-resolution photo. Most digital cameras have the ability to take photos at different resolutions. Make sure to set your camera to a high resolution in order to take the best quality photo.
